Subject contents	The classes will focus on the practical aspect of acting in the field of culture. Under the supervision of the instructor, students will work on specific, original ideas that can become real events in culture. By developing their own cultural activity individually or in groups (it may be of a social or artistic nature), students will have the opportunity to practically test their skills thanks to which a creative idea becomes a real project. They will learn methods and tools for, among others: conducting problem analysis and partner analysis, defining goals and tasks within the project, as well as preliminary preparation of the budget and promotional activities. The aspect of communication and cooperation within project groups and the attitude of their members will be important.
