Subject objectives	The aim of the course is to familiarize students with the principles, mechanisms, and practice of legal and political accountability of individuals holding the highest state offices, in particular the President, the Prime Minister, members of the Council of Ministers, and members of parliament. The course is designed to develop the ability to analyze constitutional, statutory, and customary norms governing the accountability of such officials, as well as to assess the relationship between legal and political responsibility within a democratic system. Students will acquire competences enabling them to critically evaluate the functioning of institutions of control and the balance of powers in the context of the rule of law.
