| Subject objectives                          | The student acquires knowledge about the transformations of textual message in contemporary theater and drama. They learn about the issues related to the adaptation of non-theatrical texts, as well as the mediatized word in the practice of staging. By analyzing dramatic texts and theatrical performances, they incorporate an understanding of new ideas and practices in the performing arts. The student develops the ability to critically discuss the analyzed phenomena using research methods from the fields of literary studies, theater studies, performance studies, and media studies. |  |                                     |            |   |         |     |
