Subject objectives	The lecture is an original presentation of the most significant social problems in the contemporary world, also present in Polish society. The framework for identifying these problems across seven lectures will be based on seven social values whose threats affect entire societies as well as, in various ways, specific disadvantaged and minority social groups or categories. Students will acquire the ability to analyze exclusion and marginalization as processes that are not permanently assigned to any group of "others" but emerge in different places and contexts.
