Subject contents	This lecture is intended primarily for students of courses conducted in English, the curricula of which include topics related to the functioning of Polish entrepreneurs. Although these topics focus primarily on domestic business transactions, foreign transactions are also discussed. Lecture examines issues related to how entrepreneurs function, how they wind down activities, including for reasons of insolvency, and the legal transactions conducted within the confines of the economic trade of so-called commercial activities. It also focuses on issues pertaining to the amicable settlement of disputes through arbitration.
