	Example issues/ example questions/ tasks being completed	How is bodily agency understood across different cultures, and how do these perspectives differ? In what ways can the body become a space of resistance against social norms? What cultural meanings are assigned to the able and disabled body? How do people with disabilities build their own agency in everyday life? What are the social expectations toward bodies in the workplace, and how can they be challenged? What does a productive body mean in various cultural contexts? How can everyday practices (e.g., walking, eating, moving through the city) be understood as strategies of agency? What are the challenges and possibilities of researching the body in anthropology?
