Example issues/ example questions/ tasks being completed	An overview of the religions of ancient Greece and Rome, as well as Celtic tribes. The time frame of the religions presented extends from the beginning of the historical period to the consolidation of the rule of the Christian religion. When considering religions, special attention will be paid to the myth-religion and ritual-religion relationships. The classes will concern cult and doctrinal matters and the relationship between religion and the birth of civilization and political systems. Attention will be paid to forms of expressing worship other than monotheistic ones. Detailed considerations will concern the religions of the Greeks, Romans and Celts. Considerations will be made on the influence of Christianity on the so-called "pagan world" from the 1st to the 5th century AD. As part of group work (classes X-XI), students will also receive various source texts (Greek, Roman) for analysis from a religious perspective.
