Subject objectives	The aim of the class is to introduce students to the problems of contemporary provenance research in the broadest sense, focusing on the concept of art history as the history of an object. They include the complete history of an object, including information about the history of the title to it, from the time of its manufacture or discovery, through which its authenticity and ownership status can be established. The classes provide an understanding of selected methods: from archival searches to material and conservation research.
