Subject objectives	The aim of the course is to develop skills for building effective, diverse, and strategic relationships in the workplace, with particular emphasis on the specific characteristics of cultural institutions. Students will learn the mechanisms of professional networking, its impact on career development, quality of leadership, and organizational innovation, as well as practical tools useful in the daily functioning of cultural institutions. The course teaches students to recognize their own communication styles, consciously manage relationships, analyze contact networks, and use them for strategic action, drawing on the work of H. Ibarra, R. Burt, J. Pfeffer, L. Gratton, and M. Granovetter. Students will also practice implementing models of collaboration, conflict resolution, team communication, and building a culture of trust and responsibility. The course prepares students for leadership roles, project-based work, and functioning within complex cultural ecosystems, both local and international.
